A Creed for June.

- While tree-tops talk of the day to come; I believe in the gladness of hopes a-born-While yet the lips of them tremble-
- I believe in the fresh sweet smell of th Caught and kissed by the conquering
- I believe in the sweets that hide in the By gray stone walls, where still brooks
- I believe in the long, straight beams that
- quiver, Falling down through the great white
- While under the face of the glittering Currents are moving and eddies play.
- I believe in the rising scent of the
- Filling the cups of the afternoon;

  I believe in the height of the cloudy
- towers, Built in the west, to fall too soon.
- I believe in the music of hidden thrushes, Only heard in the tangle of trees—

  I believe in the lullaby wind as it hushes
  Green little leaves, and the drone of
- I believe in the good, great world, and
- I love it;
  I love and believe in Man, and the call
  Of the Soul that is in it, and yet above
- I believe in the God who made it all.

THE DAISY

By JOHN LEYDEN.

John Leyden we born a shepherd's son at Denholm, Scotland, September 8, 1775, and died at Batavia, Java, August 27, 1811. He studied at Edinburgh University, was licensed as a preacher, helped Scott gather material for his "Border Minstrelay," became a surgeon and a naturalist, professor at Bengal College, Judge, commissioner and assay master of the Calcutta mint. He knew thirty-four languages or dialects, He wrote histories, essays, translations, and long and short poems.

TAR of the mead! Sweet daughter of the day, Whose opening flower invites the morning ray From the moist cheek and bosom's chilly fold To kiss the tears of eve, the dew-drops cold!

Sweet daisy, flower of love! When birds are paired,

"Tis sweet to see thee, with thy bosom bared,

Smiling in virgin innocence serene,

Thy pearly crown above thy vest of green. lark with sparkling eye and rustling wing Rejoins his widowed mate in early spring, And, as he prunes his plumes of russet hue, Swears on thy maiden blossom to be true. Oft have I watched thy closing buds at evo, Which for the parting sunbeams seemed to grieve; And when gay morning gilt the dew-bright plain, Seen them unclasp their folded leaves again; Nor he who sung "The daisy is so sweet!" More dearly loved thy pearly form to greet, When on his scarf the knight the daisy bound, And dames to tourney's shone with daisies crowned, And fays forsook the purer fields above. To hall the daisy, flower of faithful love.

FOR HIGH SCHOOL

ive Organizations, Will Urge Council to Buy Block.

MATTER COMES UP MONDAY

Council Will Then Be Almost Overwhelmed With Petitions From Property-Owners.

That the proposed new High School be built on practically the entire block bounded by Clay, Marshall and Eighth and Ninth Streets, seems to be the wish of every one who has been heard to express an opinion. Interest in the effort to secure the additional half block as a site for the school and playgrounds is widespread, and thousands of names have already been signed to the petitions that are now making their way from house to house of this city. The educational association is working hard to bring this result about, and it looks very much as if they are going to succeed.

to succeed.

The City Council has already bought one half of the block, and the new school will be built, as the matter stands at present, on the half facing Clay, and bounded by Eighth and Ninth Streets, and with the edifice facing on Clay. It is this that the City School Board, the Educational Association and the Civic Improvement League are combatting, and it must be said that they are putting up a stiff struggle to get the best possible school for the city with the best possible situation.

tion.

These organizations are at the head of the movement to buy the entire block, reserving the residence of Chief Justice Marshall for the use of offices, and of having the High School face on Marshall Street. They argue that by the old plan the school would face down the hill and be "two miles from the heart of the city," as Dr. S. C. Mitchell strongly but truly put it recently. They say there would be no room for possible future entension of the school, and that the rear will face on an alley and a lot of back yards.

Will Come Up Monday.

Will Come Up Monday. Will Come Up Monday.

At the Council meeting next Monday evening, the matter of the purchase of the additional half of the block will be discussed and it is expected that prominent members of the association will appear before the body and urge their objections to a school built on only a half block and facing Clay Street. They will be backed by a number of petitions that have the names of several thousand citizens of Richmond attached to them. The half block will not, it is believed, that have the names of several thousand citizens of Richmond attached to them. The half block will not, it is believed, cost the city over $75,000, and it can be gotten either by direct purchase or by condemnation proceedings. The ultimate result of the meeting is awaited with the greatest interest by every citizen of Richmond.

Alderman Beirne Blair has a proposition regarding the site of the new High School, which he will probably bring before the council next Monday night. It is his idear to have the school face on Eight street, and occupy the whole block with the exception of the old Marshall home. The fronting on Eighth thinks Mr. Blair will be more avantageous to the school than if, it faced either Clay or Marshall streets, and he provides for a large playground, and for the setting out of trees and flowers to ornament the school. It is possible that the Edutational association may adopt his compromise. However, it is thought that they will appear before the council with their original plan in view having the school facing Marshall street.
